

Eakins wins again

John Eakins, Liberal incumbent in the riding of Victoria - Haliburton, was at the crest of the Grit wave which swept across the province Thursday. The candidate captured the biggest win of his political career to be a part of the sweep which saw 95 Liberals elected to the 130 seat provincial Legislature.

Unofficial tallies at the end of the evening gave the incumbent 16,398 votes. Trailing far behind was the Conservative, Art Ward, with 5,901 votes. The spread between the two, 10,497, was the largest this riding has seen in years.

Close behind the PC candidate was the New Democratic Party representative Ivan Moore with 4,272 votes. The fourth candidate in the race, Diane Roblin-Lee of the Family Coalition Party polled 2,412.

Eakins attributed the Liberal victory to two main issues. "People across the riding and the province responded to the leadership of David Peterson," he commented. "As I went door-to-door during the campaign I found more people telling me 'I like David Peterson' ". Eakins said. He attributed the popularity of the Liberal leader to the open style of government and the accessibility that the party had brought to the provincial government scene.

Eakins attributed the large local support for his campaign to his responsiveness to the needs of the constituents. "I have done my best to meet the needs of the people of this riding," he said. The incumbent also noted that the government had served the riding well, introducing a number of new programs of benefit to many groups and individuals.

The one area where Eakins placed second in the polls was in Norland. The three polls adjacent to that community, endorsed the Conservative candidate ahead of Eakins, (in one poll, the candidates were tied). The reversal, which stood out among all but one other poll report across the riding, was no doubt the result of the intense interest in the closure of the local public school as proposed by Victoria County Board of Education. Those favouring the retention of the local schools did not feel Eakins had provided strong enough support for their stand and swung their support to Ward when he came out for a complete review of the decision.

Eakins said the reaction of the Norland area voters was not an unexpected one. He said Thursday evening that he felt he had responded to the concerns of the citizens of the area and taken their feelings to the Weak support for Ward

In stark contrast to the celebrations at John Eakins' victory party, a dull silence, broken only by the chatter of a television, prevailed Thursday at Art Ward's party above the Olympia Restaurant in Lindsay.

From the moment the local results began to flow, and perhaps long before that, it was clear that the PC candidate was faced with defeat. One by one, the results from the various polling stations around Victoria - Haliburton, showed what must have been expected: strong support for the incumbent Eakins.

What was surprising, though, was the magnitude of the defeat. Despite the energetic campaign waged by Ward, who was the only real contender in this race, Eakins was returned with the greatest support he has enjoyed in his seven election runs. Eakins captured more than 56 per cent of the votes as 16,398 voters gave him their support. Ward, on the other hand, only narrowly took second place with 5,901 votes to NDP candidate Ivan Moore's 4,272.

By 8:55, with fewer than half the votes tallied, Ward was conceding defeat, as a small group of supporters watched the broadcast over Lindsay Cable 10 from the Olympia. "I'm looking forward to getting back to the fresh air of the Highlands," said Ward. At the same time, though, he pledged to continue working for the Tory party and the riding.

Right from the start, the writing was on the wall for a fifth consecutive win for Eakins. The popular MPP was now a Cabinet Minister.

$18,000 loan for Applied Stress Inc.

As many as five jobs could be created at a little-known Minden industry over the next year with the help of an $18,000 loan from the Eastern Ontario Development Corporation.

Gerry Vandenbrink, owner of Applied Stress Technology Inc. located on the Blairhampton Road, said the incentive loan will be used to acquire equipment to manufacture force transducers, which are used in electronic weigh systems.

Although the former University of Western Ontario engineering instructor has been operating his business in this area for about 18 months, its presence has been a well-kept secret. Vandenbrink says he has shunned publicity because the business is still in an experimental stage.

Vandenbrink moved onto his 100-acre parcel of land a year and a half ago. "I had to do something to spend my time, so I started my own business," he said.

Noting that there are no Canadian producers of the specialized load sensors, Vandenbrink decided there was a market for this product. And unlike the American producers, which provide a standard product, he said his company is making transducers that are designed to fit specific applications set out by the buyer.

While Applied Stress Technology Inc. is already enjoying a "fair bit of sales", Vandenbrink says he is engaged in negotiations for contracts with some large customers. If he wins these contracts, he says the company will have to become more serious about production.

Force transducers are high precision units ranging in size from one square inch to 20 square inches, depending on the use. They are used in weigh scales which are capable of accurately measuring weights from an 11 lb. load to a 100,000 lb. load.

Stanhope council

The following business was dealt with at the September 9 meeting of Stanhope Township Council:

Council will not prevent a property owner from building a shed that will straddle a creek unless it hampers the natural water flow, Anne Willis was told.

Willis, who was on hand at last Wednesday's meeting, expressed concern about her neighbour's plan to build a shed that will straddle a small river. She told council that if leaves are allowed to build up beneath the shed, the water will overflow the banks and flood her property.

Willis was told that it is the Ministry of Natural Resources' responsibility to decide if such a structure is permitted. The ministry has been shown the plans, but has not yet responded to council.

Council will, however, be informing the property owner that if the shed causes a future diversion in the water course, the shed would have to be moved.

Settling the dispute

A 20-year-old dispute concerning the former council chamber property and the adjoining property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Roberts might finally be settled now that Sandy Roberts has decided to act as sort of a mediator.

Roberts, who is asking for approval of a severance of the property owned by her parents, was told that the severance could not be allowed until all the conditions of a 1980 Supreme Court ruling were met. According to council, the only roadblock left is for the Roberts to sign a quit claim deed.

Both council and Sandy Roberts agreed it would be beneficial to finally have the matter cleared up. She is anticipating inheriting a portion of the property from her parents. After a lengthy discussion with council, she agreed to present the information to her parents to see if an agreement could be reached.

Cold Springs

Council will be contacting Larry VanLieshout in order to get permission to do the necessary work to improve the condition of the cold springs.

Water tests taken at the cold springs have indicated a high bacteria count, which makes the water unsuitable for drinking. In addition, the dry summer has left the well with very little water.

Although a property swap with VanLieshout will result with the township owning the springs, the deal has yet to be finalized. For this reason, council needs approval before it can carry out any work to improve the water quality. In the meantime, a sign will be posted warning users of the poor water quality.

Granny Flats

With the large proportion of senior citizens in the county, Stanhope Township Council will be asking the Ministry of Housing to forward any information regarding the progress of the trial "Granny Flat" program.

The program, which permits two residences to be built on one lot, is designed to ease the housing crunch for seniors, while maintaining a level of independence.

At last Wednesday's meeting, councillor Jock Mavor said the township should advise the ministry of its interest in the project. Correspondence from the ministry indicates that the initial trial projects have been completed and results are being examined. Mavor suggested that Stanhope should submit an invitation to the ministry if more trial programs are planned.

Mavor said involvement in this program would not be a duplication of the housing that is being provided by the Staunworth Housing Corporation. He said this program would allow seniors to enjoy complete independence with the security of having family nearby.

Rockface Inn

There is not enough demand in the Stanhope area to support another large resort, a feasibility study on the proposed Rockface Inn has concluded.

The proposed resort, which would be located on property behind the Stanhope Fire Hall, was not recommended by the consultants who did the study. They concluded that the resort would be able to achieve an occupancy rate of only 54 per cent by the fourth year of operation.

Councillor Jock Mavor, who has taken an interest in the project, said he feels the consultants have overlooked a number of attractions in the area that could boost the predicted occupancy rate.

Reeve Harry Davis said the reason the report was not positive is because the development is not on waterfront property. However, Mavor noted that the planned development would include other attractions such as a health spa and swimming pool. He also noted that an agreement for water access with other resorts could be obtained.

NDP candidate Ivan Moore watches the television at his base Thursday evening. Moore was unusually quiet while the polls came in showing him in third place narrowly behind PC candidate Art Ward.

Moore loses wager

The lighthearted manner in which NDP candidate Ivan Moore had conducted himself throughout the campaign turned noticeably somber Thursday, as he and a gathering of supporters waited for the election results to start filtering through to his base at the Lindsay Drive-In Theatre.

Moore, who willingly carried the banner that no one else would hold, was unusually quiet Thursday night, refusing to make any comment on the results. While the majority of results from individual polling stations showed him trailing in third place behind PC candidate Art Ward, he was enthused with the results from Emily Township. In this area of the riding, Moore was receiving his best support, but still trailing behind Liberal John Eakins, who ultimately won at all but four polling stations.

The results were pretty much what had been expected, said Art Field, the previous NDP candidate. "The Tories are down here and all over Ontario. Ward may be down, but (FCP candidate Dianne Roblin Lee) is stealing a lot of his votes."

Although Moore would give no predictions about his own results, he was optimistic about the success of his party in other ridings. Those present at the drive-in each placed a dollar down in a pool to guess how many seats the New Democrats would win. Moore bet 35, and lost his dollar.

New municipal clerk Mary Mysyk takes a slice out of the cake that was provided to welcome her to the townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden during last Thursday's council meeting. Township hires new clerk

Mary Mysyk brings nine years of experience with her to her new position as Clerk-Treasurer for Anson, Hindon and Minden Township.

Mysyk began work at the township office last Tuesday, filling the position left vacant by former clerk Bev Millar.

Mysyk, who hails from Sioux Narrows, near Kenora, says she was impressed with Minden when she first came here for the job interview. She says she finds the people to be friendly and helpful.

Although she admits she has a lot to learn about the community, she brings some solid experience in municipal administration to the job. She worked for nine years as Clerk of Sioux Narrows, which has a summer population of 6,000 and winter population of 400. Prior to that, she worked as a bookkeeper with Dunwoody Auditors. Along with her husband and two children, Mysyk also used to own and operate a resort lodge in the Kenora area.

Mysyk's husband, Walter, is a former sawmill foreman, and was active in the Sioux Narrows Chamber of Commerce. Her daughter, Anita, is a student at Western Medical School. And her son, John, is a professional musician working in Winnipeg.

Mysyk received her AMCT qualifications through McMaster University. She also received a degree in Municipal Management.

Mysyk was greeted to the township at her first council meeting last Thursday. Because she was not officially appointed to the position until that meeting, she watched the activities from the public gallery. During a break in the meeting, she was presented with a cake, which said, "Welcome to A, H & M" in the icing.

Noise is everywhere

Like Anson, Hindon and Minden Township, Stanhope Township is struggling to deal with the increased amount of noise generated by late-night activities during the summer.

Responding to a complaint from a Halls Lake resident at last Wednesday's meeting, Stanhope Township Council suggested that it should consider hiring an assistant bylaw enforcement officer to deal with the problem next summer.

In a letter to council, Reginal Hummel, who lives on the south-east side of Halls Lake, complained about the "intolerable" amount of noise coming from Halls Lake Park. He said there are parties at the park every weekend that sometimes go on until 3 a.m. He suggested that the park should be closed at sunset and heavy fines be levied against trespassers.

Councillor Elvin Johnson

was not in favour of closing the park at night. He said there are many who enjoy using the park at night without making noise. "It's too bad when a group like this has to spoil it for others," he said.

Johnson also suggested that the people making all the noise are probably residents of the lake. "It will be embarrassing to Halls Lake people when they find out it is their own children."

Unlike Anson, Hindon and Minden, Stanhope has an anti-noise bylaw in place.

Unfortunately, police do not enforce municipal bylaws. Clerk Gerald Bain said the OPP is willing to offer assistance, but the bylaw enforcement officer has to lay the charges.

Councillor Jock Mavor suggested that the bylaw enforcement officer should monitor the situation at the park for what is left of the summer. He said council should also think about hiring a student for next summer to be a deputy bylaw enforcement officer.

For the first time in 50 years the provincial Liberals have been given the opportunity to enjoy a majority government as they swept 95 of Ontario's 130 ridings in last Thursday's election. While this may be cause for celebration for many, it should also be met with some concern from Ontario residents.

We need look no further than Ottawa to see the kind of inept bumbling that can result from such a majority. And while the Liberals are well aware of the traps, they will have to walk carefully to avoid the overconfidence that comes with such a win.

On the same token, the majority should give them the freedom to carry out their promises without the hindrance of the NDP or Conservatives. Therefore, it is up to David Peterson and his Cabinet to choose which path they will take. In the meantime there is little we can do except sit back and watch.

Over the next few years, the Tories will also have a chance to sit back and lick their wounds, reflecting on what went wrong. Locally, we can be sure that the Conservatives will be looking at the results and deciding if Art Ward is the man they want as a candidate in the next election. A good piece of advice to them might be, 'Don't throw the baby out with the bath water.'

Victoria - Haliburton is not a riding where an unknown can come in and win. And to some extent, that is what Ward was facing in this election. It's what Murray Fearrey faced in the previous election and Jim Webster faced the time before that.

Despite the numbers shown on the tote boards Thursday night, we feel Ward was a good candidate, who would likely make a good Member of Parliament. He showed a lot of courage by throwing his hat into the ring at a time when his chances of winning were virtually nil. For this reason we would like to see him back.

Over the next few years, if Eakins knows he will again be faced with a tough fight to regain his seat, he will have to work that much harder.

When visiting Twelve Mile Lake cemetery today to place flowers on my father's and brother's grave, and stopping by other close relatives resting in the cemetery, I was very upset to see vandalism had occurred recently. There were headstones pushed over, and empty liquor and beer bottles lying around. Incidents of this sort are very distressing to myself and family and other families of those resting at this cemetery. What do sick people get out of doing this sort of thing? Are there any measures that can be taken to prevent this?

A very concerned citizen,
Nell Miscio,

The crisis has passed

by Arthur Black

Great news, folks - the crisis is passed! Tell Uncle Albert he can take off his World War II Civil Defense helmet! See if you can coax Aunt Minnie and her two budgies to come out of the root cellar!

The world isn't coming to an end after all!

What? You were up at the lake and didn't hear about it? Oh boy, let me tell you, it was touch and go for a while there. It was a Russian that started it all - Alexander Voyteskhovsky, if you want me to name names. Alex, a Moscow journalist specializing in scientific affairs, copped the front page of last week's edition of a Russian newspaper called Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya - oh, never mind what it's called, it'll only hurt your head. Point is, Alex wrote a story that said there was a rogue asteroid out in space, streaking toward earth, and that it would smash into the planet in the year 2115, creating massive destruction, killing millions of people, possibly even knocking earth out of orbit and killing us all.

Well, talk about a news story to end news stories! Kind of knocks Sean Penn's latest mugging or Liz Taylor's latest marriage back into the Births Deaths and Classifieds doesn't it? Can't you hear old Alex phoning into his editor? "Better leave some room on the front page comrade ... I've got ten paragraphs on Armageddon here..."

The Russian newspaper played the story up with a verve and panache that would have brought tears to the eyes of an editor of News of the World or The National Enquirer. "Killer Asteroid!" they dubbed it. Voyteskhovsky's purple prose warned that the only possible salvation lay in the immediate formation of what he called an All World Space Service for the Defence of Earth. Maybe, wrote Alex, the greatest scientific minds on Earth, working in last-ditch, backs-to-the-wall harmony, could come up with a scheme to deflect the asteroid, or even blow it up in deep space.

There was a lot of truth in Alex's exclusive scoop. There really is an asteroid out there and it's a big one - three miles across. What's more it is heading toward earth and if it did hit us it could do incalculable damage.

Thing is, it won't. Astronomers now agree that asteroid 1983 TB is going to miss our planet - by about 200,000 miles.

They also agree that not too many of us will be around to witness the event. In the year 2115, asteroid 1983 TB won't even have arrived in our solar system. Scientists don't expect the chunk of celestial jetsam to reach our back yard for at least another century or two.

How did a scientific journalist manage to get so far off base? Well, it seems Alexander was relying on calculations done by two British astronomers. The asteroid is a relative newcomer, having first been spotted only four years ago. Apparently the British astronomers dashed off some calculations based on preliminary observations and Alexander snatched them up and printed them.

Actually, it's a wonder that we haven't had an asteroid disaster to contend with, when you think about it. Astronomers have seen and tagged nearly 4,000 asteroids whirling around out there beyond the ozone - and that's just the big ones - half a mile in diameter or larger. Anything smaller than that is impossible to detect - not that that makes them any less dangerous. The earth gets peppered by intergalactic missiles 365 days a year. Lucky for us most of it arrives in the form of dust or small chunks of asteroids that we call meteorites or comets. Even more fortunately, most of the intruders burn up before they reach the earth.

It's just as well that somebody didn't get their math quite right because Asteroid 1983 TB would make quite a mess if it did hit the earth. The experts say that it could easily create a crater more than 60 miles wide, and produce an explosion equivalent to a dozen or so hydrogen bombs detonating simultaneously.

All this talk about asteroids making you nervous? Relax. The odds really are on our side. Scientists point out that over the last million years only three largish asteroids have made it through the earth's atmosphere. That works out to one every 333,000 years, give or take a millennium.

And even when they hit, it's not necessarily the end of the world. Heck, a whileback a huge chunk of asteroid streaked through the heavens, blazed across our skies and slammed into the Precambrian Shield right here in Canada, gouging a crater nearly 60 miles wide. Happened 1.7 billion years ago, but you can find the exact point of impact on any Canadian roadmap.

It's called Sudbury, Ontario.

Russians playing in Canada

by Bill Kulas

If you're a hockey fan, such as I, you have no doubt been watching recent televised Canada Cup matches. Two Sundays ago our Canadian team took on the Rouskies at Copps Coliseum in Hamilton. The outcome of the game was a hard fought 3 - 3 tie. Last Thursday Canada played against a Russian satellite state, Czechoslovakia. We had to fight back from being down two goals and managed an impressive 5 to 3 victory.

Yes, our team has been doing well considering they have been together as a team for only a few short weeks against a USSR team that drills and trains its members twelve months of the year for years in order to triumph in world calibre tournaments. For the Russian System, being number 1 in hockey or in any other sport is of paramount importance. The political implications of being superior in world sports is a priority for the Communist System. It's an important part of their propaganda machine. It's an example to the world that their system is the best! Many people believe that we should not allow the USSR into our country. I certainly give Harold Ballard, the outspoken and sometimes abrasive owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs credit. No way will he allow a Russian hockey team to play in his gardens. Why allow a country such as Russia, which by the way is culpable of countless acts of human rights violations be allowed to come here to gain glory and big bucks?

Many Canadians are appalled at what is going on in South Africa and have resorted to boycotting South American goods.

Yet, for a great many years Russia has been violating the basic human rights of millions of people. Their violations simply dwarf what is happening in South Africa. None-the-less after starving millions of people to death after the second world war during the Stalin purge, invading Hungary and Czechoslovakia, imposing a Russification System in the Ukraine, Latvia and Estonia, invading Afghanistan, threatening Poland the list goes on and on, they have come out of it relatively unscathed. Is it right to chastise the South Africans and not the Russians? Should we allow Russian hockey in Canada? What do you think?

Canada World Youth

Sherry Biscope and Saba Masood are this week's featured Canada World Youth participants. During their stay in Haliburton County, Sherry and Saba are boarding with Jim and Glenda Burk. Fourteen CWY participants arrived in Haliburton in July for the first half of a seven-month exchange.

Saba Masood

Assalam - 0 - Alakum! This means 'Hello' in my native language which is Urdu. My name is Saba Masood and I am from a country in Asia called Pakistan. My religion is Islam and I am a Muslim by faith. I have been selected to represent my country on a 6 months "Youth Cultural Exchange Programme" jointly sponsored by the Governments of both the countries. Now I would like to tell you a bit about myself. I studied for the first ten years of my life in Presentation Convent run by Catholic Irish nuns. I graduated in 1985 from a college in Rawalpindi and majored in "Economics, Statistics and English Language". Then I took up a job for six months as a teacher and taught Mathematics and English Language to Grade 5, Grade 6 and Grade 7. It was a stimulating experience and I learnt a lot from it. I left the job to take up a couple of courses in "Computer Orientation". I am the kind of person who loves challenges and experimenting on new ideas! So it was on one cold February morning when I came across an advertisement in a local newspaper about a "Youth Exchange Programme" between Canada and Pakistan. As I love travelling and meeting new people, therefore, I decided to apply in the hope of being selected as one of the fourteen girls who would be sent abroad. However, my parents did not unfortunately share my enthusiastic views and considered formal education more important. In this context I would like to mention that I am currently doing my Masters in "International Relations" from Quaid - e - Azom University in Pakistan. In our educational system, it is not feasible or practical to take a year off from studies and my father who's a retired army officer thought that I would be losing out on a good degree if I decided to come to Canada. But as we all know "when there's a will there's a way!" So friends, here I am!! It's been almost six weeks since I landed in Toronto after a 28 hour flight (Boy, what a flight!) But I am very glad that I came because it's been a truly marvelous experience. My counter-part Sherry Biscope is from Ottawa and has been a source of strength and support in difficult times. We have our ups and downs, arguments and heated discussions as we both come from totally different backgrounds, cultures, religions and countries. But I am glad to say we have managed to establish a relationship based on trust and understanding. I consider myself fortunate to be living with a warm and hospitable billeting family - the Burks. Jim and Glenda Burk and their three lovely children Joshua, Matthew and little Sarah have been very considerate and friendly which has helped me in feeling at home. My Work Project is with the Haliburton "Home Support Services" and it has been an interesting yet an unusual experience. In the end I would like to thank the people of this tiny, peaceful and scenic village for making our stay pleasant and comfortable. Such Youth Exchange Programmes, in my opinion, are a most effective means of bridging the differences between the East and the West.

Sherry Biscope

Hello. My name is Sherry Biscope. I am from the Ottawa-Hull area. I have lived in Hull for the past sixteen years and my family and I moved to the Ontario side last year. So my education took place in Quebec, which means that hardly anyone understands when I say that I've just graduated from C.E.G.E.P. and I am about to enter University. I hope to be attending McGill University and study Sociology and Economics and go on to my Masters in International Aid. This programme is important to me because it is my one real opportunity at this time to experience a developing Nation's culture and situation first hand. You can only learn so much from a book and I feel that, that knowledge has to be supplemented with reality. I hope to take the knowledge I gain from this experience and apply it to my future career. My counterpart, Saba Masood, has certainly been a great help in her eagerness to explain to myself and our billeting family what life is like in Pakistan both for herself and a typical Pakistani woman. And this has helped us to better understand a culture we were unfamiliar with before this programme and her arrival. And if this programme gives me nothing more than that understanding and friendship I'll be happy. And I'd just like to thank the people who make this programme and therefore that understanding and tolerance possible.

Thank you.

Ward surprised by support

and his party was riding high on a wave of popularity of magnitude never before experienced by the Liberals.

When the election was called, Ward openly said he was going in with his "eyes wide open." And once the impact of the defeat set in Thursday, he repeated this statement. "I had hoped to do better," he admitted. "But in light of the provincial results, I'm not surprised." Ward said the campaign was a "long tough grind. Thirty days is a long writ."

Ward also attributed partial credit for his defeat to the surprising support given to the Family Coalition candidate. He said Diane Roblin-Lee is a capable speaker and was able to take away a certain amount of his territory.

While Ward managed to hold onto second spot in this riding, the Tories fell to third place overall on the provincial scene. Upon losing his seat, Tory leader Larry Grossman surprisingly announced that he would step down as party leader.

Ward said Grossman's resignation was not a surprise to him. He said he had backed Grossman in his leadership bid because of his strength as a Cabinet Minister in the Bill Davis government. "He was one of the best Cabinet Ministers," said Ward. However, he admitted that Grossman was not able to win over the voters in this campaign.

Perhaps the biggest question on the minds of reporters after the results were told was whether Ward would be willing to throw his hat into the ring for the next provincial election. It has become almost a tradition with the local Tory party to pick a new candidate from its ranks to run against Eakins. Haliburton County Warden Murray Fearrey, who was noticeably absent from the activities Thursday, led the last unsuccessful bid against Eakins and decided not to run again. Prior to Fearrey, it was Jim Webster who went down in defeat to Eakins.

After some deliberation and examination of the results, Ward concluded that he would be willing to run again if the party would support him. "If the party wishes me to continue, I'm willing to." Ward said it takes more than one run to win this riding. "John knows how I feel," he said, referring to Eakins' initial two defeats. "I don't know if I could do it three times, but I'd like to try it again."

Ward also said he would be willing to run on the federal level if MP Bill Scott decided to retire. However, he insisted that he would not run against Scott.

Looking back at the campaign, Ward admitted there are a few things he would have done differently

if he had the chance to go back. "I learned a lot," he said. "I had to come a long way to become better known in the riding."

Asked if he was disappointed with the results, especially with the defeat in his home town of Haliburton, Ward said he is satisfied that he had done everything possible to do as well as he did. "I worked hard and did the best under the circumstances."

officials in the Ministry of Education, he reiterated his stand, however, that the decision on the future of the schools in the northern part of Victoria County should remain with the school board and he felt he had no right to interfere with their decision. "There is no way I can interfere in the decisions of the board," he commented. "I would be willing to lose an election over this issue."

Eakins described the local campaign as a clean fight. He said the area was fortunate to have a good selection of quality candidates. He felt that any animosity created during the campaign would dissipate and that the various factions could continue to work on a friendly basis.

Looking to his own future in the greatly expanded Liberal Government, Eakins refused to speculate on his position within the party. He served for the last two years as the Minister of Tourism and Recreation. He said his appointment to a Cabinet post was strictly up to the Premier, noting that the Liberal leader now has many more individuals from which to choose informing the next Cabinet. "I'm a team player," Eakins said. "I'm willing to accept any position or direction the Premier gives me."

The one challenge facing the Liberal government during its term, according to Eakins, will be to ensure that the voice of the opposition is heard. He said the large majority won by the Liberals places an extra responsibility on the Premier to ensure all opinions are represented at Queen's Park.

Liberals sure of win

Quiet confidence. That is the only way to describe the mood at the Victoria-Haliburton Liberal election headquarters Thursday evening.

Even before the polls had closed the subdued crowd which had gathered at the Lindsay Curling Club exuded a feeling that they were on hand to be witnesses for something they knew all along was going to happen anyway.

However, no one in the room seemed quite prepared for the size of the Grit sweep across the riding and the province. It took about 15 minutes for the results to start to trickle in, but as the onlookers moved up and down the scoreboard there was little to upset their earlier comfortable feelings.

Across the riding from Oxtongue Lake in the north to Fingerboard in the west and Mariposa in the south, John Eakins led the count. He was on his way to his largest victory of his political career.

On the other side of the room, a line of television monitors relayed that the massive sweep the Liberal candidate was experiencing in this riding was being repeated across the province. Riding after riding responded to the charisma of leader David Peterson.

Shortly after 8:30 p.m., John Eakins arrived at the hall to what he surely knew would be a victory celebration. His loyal supporters pressed forward to offer their congratulations and best wishes. The incumbent responded with comments of appreciation for their support and hard work during the campaign.

Before 9 o'clock it was all over. There were many more polls to be counted in this riding, but the Eakins' lead was unassailable. The confidence which the incumbent's supporters had brought to the campaign and the hall proved well chosen. Their candidate and party had more than carried the day.

Around 9:30 p.m. Conservative candidate Art Ward arrived at the hall to congratulate the Liberal victor. Accompanied by his family and a small group of campaign workers, he offered his personal best wishes to the winner.

A short time later, Ivan Moore, the NDP standard bearer arrived to offer his congratulations. Speaking to the audience, Moore said that Eakins had done "one heck of a job" during the campaign, and suggested that he didn't think the MPP would "mess up" in representing the riding in Queen's Park. The NDP candidate suggested that he could have given the Conservatives a bigger run for their money if he had entered the campaign three weeks earlier. "If I'm running the next time, I will," Moore commented.

The man who was the centre of the attention for the evening, John Eakins, then spoke to the crowd. Describing it as a "great campaign," he recalled the early days of his provincial election campaigning. "The first time we got together for an evening like this, we met in a phone booth," Eakins commented with a chuckle. Looking out over the large crowd, he expressed his appreciation for their support and hard work. In particular, he noted the contribution made by residents of Haliburton County and in particular mentioned the hard work of West Guilford resident Grenville Stamp. Eakins noted that the former co-publisher of The Times, a quadrapalegic, returned home from hospital to con-

Editor:

I am always flattered when someone wants to do a story on our little Theatre. I did however find a couple of objectionable quotes included in the article, in your paper last week.

You have me calling Kinmount a Zip town! What I said was that I was surprised to find that the weekly ticket sales at the Theatre were beginning to equal towns the size of Bancroft, and Alliston, and that if you compared Kinmount to a town the size of Alliston, that it was only a little zip town, and if you blinked while driving through, you might miss it. I chose to live in Kinmount, for precisely the reason that it is a small quiet town. The way you printed the remark, virtually insults the people who live here.

The next remark is that the Stupid restaurants won't even stay open past 7 p.m. If your reporter felt some burning desire to mention this rather than delve into some interesting aspects of the Theatre, at least it could have been re-phrased as to not insult anyone. I don't mind being on record for my opinion, I do mind if the remark is insulting! The restaurant problem is of a real concern as we constantly get complaints from customers who want to get something to eat after the first show, but find everyone closed, during July and August. As attendance is several hundred a night, and roughly 40% of moviegoers eat after a show, it should be worth-while for someone to stay open.

You said I credited the Theatre's success to the type of other Theatres in the area. I said I credited the Theatre's success to the fact that we had tried to make it as comfortable, and as technically perfect as possible, and were always making improvements. That is why I hope to expand the lobbies etc. to speed up access and exit of customers, and reduce delays when we are crowded, and why I am putting in a new screen in #1 to brighten the picture. I also said I had tried to make the Theatre unique, so that the Theatre as well as the movie was a reason to come.

I also said the two Theatres had more to offer than one, which is why I am contemplating a third, so there is more variety of product. And I said I try to keep the theatre quiet, as the price of admission entitles you to enjoy a movie, not to ruin it for someone else. The fact is I also run a lot of children's movies, and children are not all that quiet. The children I was referring to were the ones old enough to know better!

I appreciate that you took the time to do a story on the Theatre, because it is the publicity that it has been given that has finally dispelled the many ridiculous rumours about the place. Only last year I had a Tourist tell me that for three years he drove to Fenelon to the show, because someone on the main street of this town told him the Theatre was only a T.V. in the living room, and he believed them until he made up his mind to come and see for himself. I do wish however that your reporter had taken more care with what he wrote, because remarks like that more belong in the National Enquirer than in the Minden Times.

Thank you for letting me set the record straight.

Keith W. Stata, Kinmount.

Beyond hopes: Eakins

tribute to the Liberal campaign in his community.

Commenting on the provincial results, Eakins described the Liberal sweep as "a victory beyond our expectations." He noted this places a great responsibility on the Liberal leader David Peterson. "As I pointed out during the campaign, leadership was one of the key issues."

Eakins ended his remarks, by telling the audience that it was, "Back to work as usual tomorrow."

Trent-Severn waterways report

The water levels in the Haliburton reservoir lakes have now declined to levels not equalled at this time of year since the very dry summer of 1960. The average percentage of the lakes is down 5 per cent from last week to only 42.8 per cent on August 31. It has been possible to put a stoplog back in some dams in the Upper Gull River watershed as the result of showers further down the system and the water not being needed to maintain the minimum flows on the Gull River. The Gull River flow has now been held at its minimum since May 15th and only two-thirds of the water normally drawn for the Kawartha Lakes has been run this summer. The balance of our losses have been due to high evaporation.

The Kawartha Lake levels are now down 3 - 5 centimetres and are in mid-range for navigation season. With Otonabee River flows being held at a minimum and a few modest showers, we should be able to maintain all levels along the canal route without placing restrictions on maximum draft.

The outlook would seem to indicate that there is little chance of a recovery of the levels on the reservoir lakes this summer as the dry conditions continue to persist.

The Times donates new microfiche reader to local library

Individuals wishing to use back copies of The Times for research on the county, will now have access to the newspaper at the Minden Library. The local facility has received a microfiche reader, donated by The Times, and will carry copies of the Minden based newspaper on fiche, as they become available.

"People seeking information about a community usually turn first to the local newspaper," publisher Jack Brezina commented. "We have people visiting our office on a regular basis wanting to consult back copies of the paper." In the past those individuals had to leaf through actual newspapers kept on file for that purpose. While this method met the needs of the researchers, the task of locating the issues in question, and the subsequent wear on the file copies created concern.

Several years ago, the Ontario Community Newspaper Association, of which The Times is a member, undertook, with the assistance of the provincial government, to record on microfiche, every edition of member papers across the province. Copies of these fiche were made available to member newspapers and anyone else willing to subscribe to the service.

When approached about the possibility of stocking the newspaper in fiche form, the Minden library committee was enthusiastic. While the library does carry several back issues of The Times, they found the newspaper was too bulky to be stored in the library's limited facilities. By recording the newspaper's pages on film, the space requirement was eliminated, as was the concern about wear and tear on the file copies. The library has agreed to continue the fiche subscription which is updated every three or four months.

The fiche reader donated by the newspaper, can also be used by the library for other material now available on that medium. County Librarian Joel Levis said the addition of the reader to the Minden Branch will mean the facility will have access to a broader range of material now recorded on fiche, including historical documents and valuable manuscripts previously unavailable. "It's this kind of community support that has helped the growth of our library system," Levis said.

The collection of newspaper microfiche dates from the first issue in 1985, when the provincial association began making copies. It is hoped that earlier issues of The Times can be added to this collection along with the regular updates received by the library.

Times publisher Jack Brezina said he was pleased to make the donation to the library. "Not only will this provide a service to the community, it's reassuring to know that a complete record of the newspaper exists outside of our office. Preserving the history of our area through the weekly edition of the newspaper is an important aspect of community newspapers. Often, when those records were held in only one location, usually the newspaper office, they could be

IMPORTANT CHANGES TO THE ONTARIO FARM TAX REBATE PROGRAM.

Important changes to the Ontario Farm Tax Rebate program will help farmers more than ever.

The rebate for a farmer's municipal taxes increases from 60 to 100 per cent. The municipal tax rebate applies to all farmlands and outbuildings. Rebates will no longer apply to the farm residence and the surrounding one acre of land.

In addition, farmers will not be required, as they have in the past, to prepay their municipal taxes before applying for the rebate.

Farm properties will not be reassessed unless changes to the property that would normally require assessment are made.

Applications for the rebate are being sent by mail; they must be submitted by December 31, 1988 for rebates on the 1987 period.

Curlers swing to golf

by Ralph Kennedy

On September 3 Minden Senior Curlers held a best-ball foursome at the Blairhampton Golf Course. At 5 o'clock a social hour was held at the curling club and at six we all enjoyed a sit down meal after which president Ed Pettinger thanked Gil Scott and his able helpers for a most enjoyable day.

The weather was just fine, Gil said he ordered it. There were 62 golfers in attendance for the game and 92 joined in good fellowship at the club.

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School girls field hockey team was out for some early season training after school last Thursday. Having lost six of their top players from last year's third place squad, coach Kit Pizzey says the team is rebuilding. They will compete in their first qualifying tournament at home on September 30.

Prizes were presented to the following winners. First low score (35) Skip Lloyd Boskett ably assisted by Isobel Lewis, Herb Gill and Reg Munns.

Second low score (36) won by Skip Gil Scott, Angela O'Neil, Chris Dollo and Mary Seedhouse.

Mystery hole highest score (we won't mention it) on no. 7 hole was won by Skip Bruce Armstrong, Rene Codlin, Lee Oster and Ken Walsh.

Honours for longest drive were taken home by Glenda Robertson for the ladies and Don Clee for the men.

Closest to the hole prize went to Roly Scott for men and Billy Shuyler for ladies.

President Ed closed the meeting thanking those in attendance for coming. And a special thanks for the organizers for a fun day.

First day at school

Football season kicks off

If anyone needed any extra indication that autumn is not far off, a glance at the sports field beside the high school last week provided the signs. Heavily padded young athletes wearing helmets tested their abilities under the watchful eyes of team coaches. The football season is just around the corner.

Once again this year, HHSS vice principal Gary Brohman will be coaching the senior Redmen. Physical education instructor Bob Coliver will be assisting.

Teacher John Fitzgerald is the coach of the junior team with new physical education teacher Tim Davies assisting.

The two squads have been out pounding the turf this past week in preparation for their first game this Friday afternoon. The season opens on home turf as the Redmen play host to Lindsay Collegiate Institute. The Senior game gets underway at 1:30 in the afternoon with the second contest following.

The remainder of the schedule includes:

September 25, HHSS at Fenelon Falls.

October 2, I.E. Weldon of Lindsay at HHSS.

October 9, HHSS at LCVI.

October 15, Fenelon Falls at HHSS.

October 23, HHSS at I.E. Weldon.

October 30, Kawartha West Final.

November 4, Kawartha final.

November 11, COSSA championship.

Senior Redmen coach Gary Brohman demonstrates tackling techniques during a practice last week. Both junior and senior teams are preparing for the season which opens this Friday in Haliburton.

After Coach Gary Brohman showed the Redmen how to tackle their man, the players soon got into the scrum.

Income securities has big responsibilities

The Income Security Branch of the Department of Health and Welfare Canada operates the Canada Pension Plan, the Family Allowance program, the Old Age Security program, the Guaranteed Income Supplement program and the Spouses Allowance program. As such, it is a Department which many of you must contact at various times.

In 1984, shortly after the last election, I requested consideration be given to the establishment of a Toll-Free telephone number that my constituents could use to avail themselves of all the services they provide. Last September I was advised that a trial-run was being conducted to investigate the feasibility of setting this up for all Canadians who cannot reach them without incurring charges. I have just been told that these numbers are now available for use by all constituents.

For residents of Victoria - Haliburton (excluding those with Postal Codes beginning with P) 1-800-387-5280.

For those with Postal Codes beginning with P 1-800-461-9881.

Please note that these numbers should be used only if you cannot reach the number listed in the telephone book without incurring charges.

On Tuesday, August 25 there was a large demonstration on Parliament Hill in support of the passage of Bill C-22. It is not very often that we get such vocal groups coming out to press the government to pass one of its bills. This was brought about by the Senate resorting to quite abnormal

Falls view to be restored

In response to a complaint from a local resident, Stanhope Township will be writing to the Ministry of Natural Resources in hopes of having viewing access to Buckside Falls reopened.

In a letter addressed at last Wednesday's council meeting, Mrs. D. Fox complained that improvements to the Buckside Bridge have hampered the view of the falls. She said the beautiful falls were a traditional attraction before homes were built on the shoreline. And now the bridge improvements have almost completely obscured what view of the falls remains.

Council noted that there is still a portage route which runs across private property below the falls. Although it is not clearly marked, the portage remains as a public route.

Deputy Reeve Elvin Johnson noted that the view from the portage route is obscured by trees and brush, and any attempts to clear the area would be met with objections from property owners. However, "for the benefit of everyone else, we should consider cutting brush along the 66-foot allowance," he said.

Councillor Jock Mavor said that in view of the interest expressed, council should ask the ministry to review the situation.

Legislation protects jobs

methods to delay the will of the elected members of the House of Commons to bring about needed changes to protect and expand pharmaceutical research in Canada. These protestors were quick to point out that without this legislation thousands of Canadian jobs will be lost and that the unelected Senate have no right to thwart the will of the government at the expense of the citizens of Canada.

On another note, as you know one of the big topics of discussion these days is the Free Trade negotiations. The Economic Council of Canada, an independent organization which is highly regarded for its professionalism and impartiality, has just released the findings of its long-awaited study on the impact of free trade on the Canadian economy by 1995. It predicts that a comprehensive deal with the United States could create at least 189,000 jobs and the benefits would spread to all regions of the country. In this, the Council's worst case scenario, if all customs duties and most of the other restrictions on trade were wiped out, the economy would grow by an extra 1.6 per cent by 1995. However, if Canadian companies were to make themselves more efficient and take advantage of easier access to U.S. markets the Council predicts the GNP could be boosted by 3.3 per cent, inflation would drop 5.7 per cent, real wages would rise by 3 per cent, disposable income would be up 3.1 per cent, unemployment would drop 1.3 per cent and as many as 350,000 jobs could be created. Lower import prices would, the study says, give consumers more money to spend and spending would stimulate the economy evenly across the country. Thus the Canadian consumer would be the first to win from free trade.

This summer has certainly been busy, especially with the recall of Parliament to deal with the abuse of our immigration laws. While I would have preferred to remain in the constituency, I joined many of my colleagues in requesting this recall as I felt and still feel that this situation, created by legislation passed by a former government, must be rectified immediately. I regret that this has forced me to cancel a couple of previously scheduled events and I thank those whom this caused any inconvenience for their understanding. One function which I saw many of you at was the Annual Beef Barbecue in Kinmount on August 15. The attendance of constituents from virtually every part of the riding was certainly appreciated. A marvelous address by Bill Vankoughnet, M.P., (Hastings - Frontenac - Lennox and Addington) and the presence of so many of you at a time of the year when the demands on your time are, I know, quite numerous, made this 20th Barbecue a tremendous success.

P.S.

Further to my announcement of the new toll free lines for the Income Security Branch of Health and Welfare Canada, I have just been advised that their Peterborough Office has now set up a new phone-in number.

Those in exchanges 324, 328 and 793 should now reach the Peterborough Income Security Office directly by calling 799-7498. All other areas can make use of the regional toll free number already listed in my column.

I was pleased to hear of the recent mini-shuffle of Ministers in our Cabinet.

Particularly welcome, was the addition to the mandate of George Hees of responsibility for the affairs of senior citizens. Mr. Hees has been an especially strong and fair Minister of Veterans Affairs and I know no one better to take on this new portfolio. Additionally, the Hon. Charles Mayer, who for a long time was in an office next to mine on Parliament Hill, has been given increased responsibility as Minister of State for Grains and Oils. Doug Lewis, from our next door riding of Simcoe North, will now be a Minister of State.

I wish these and all the other appointees success and I look forward to the strengthening of the administration of our government by their actions in the coming years.

Federation of Ontario Naturalists

One overcast drizzly morning near the end of August my garden was suddenly alive with bird sound. In the space of an hour I watched chestnut-sided warblers, Canada warblers, redstarts and veeries. As suddenly as they had come they were gone and the garden was still, except for the click of the cardinal and the chattering of the chickadees.

I tried to imagine the long journey which still faced these colourful specks of energy. An article published recently in The Living Bird describes research which has been going on over the last three years in Belize, Central America to determine how faithfully migrating birds return to the same wintering area. What they discovered was that migrant species are as loyal to wintering sites as to nesting sites. They examined a variety of habitats and found the greatest number of both resident and migrant species in mature rainforests. The latter included woodthrush, black-throated green warbler, ovenbird and American redstart.

We know from first-hand experience that, at this northern end of the migration, birds are often faced, on their return, with familiar woods that have been levelled or swamps that have been drained. But only recently have we begun to realize the wholesale destruction of forests that is facing them at the southern end of their journey, in the rainforests of Central and South America. No one is certain what effect this pressure at both ends of the migration will have on the bird population. Ultimately it may be disastrous.

Once rainforests formed a wide and relatively stable belt around the equator. Today the picture has changed. Rainforests are being cut for timber, for cattle grazing, for agriculture, for mining and for hydro-electric dams. In Central America, for instance, at least two-thirds of cleared land is given over to cattle production. None of this beef will be consumed locally, but will go to North America to be used as hamburgers, hot dogs.

Since a few people in Central and South America control most of the arable land (5% of the population of Brazil owns 80% of the farmland) the only area left to exploit agriculturally is the rainforest. But the nutrients of the rainforest are locked up in its vegetation. The soil itself has limited fertility. Once the vegetation is destroyed, the nutrients are gone forever. Deforested soils in the tropics are productive agriculturally for less than 10 years before erosion and nutrient loss turn the area into a desert.

Regeneration of clear-cut areas in temperate zones is a slow uncertain process whose results only the next generation will see. In the tropics regeneration of the rainforest is impossible. Seeds accustomed to sprouting under a cool leafy canopy with a plentiful supply of moisture will not germinate in the open. Once vegetation is removed, soil temperature rises, evaporation increases and rainfall decreases dramatically.

senior league

by Pearl Lyle

Hi Folks! Sorry I missed the Senior League last week; just couldn't make it.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgess and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson started the week off nicely for us with Service in the Chapel. On Tuesday morning we had Rev. Dawn Gilby from Kinmount Anglican Church. We enjoyed having her and hope she will come again.

Winnie Barnum enjoyed an outing with her son Terry on Saturday afternoon. I enjoyed watching the parade at the Kinmount fair and visiting with old friends as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown. Mary McKelvey and son attended the Kinmount fair also and reported a huge crowd and a good time for everybody.

We have another new resident at Hyland Crest. Miss Hazel Hoskin from Norland. She is not very well at present and we hope she will be better soon.

The Lioness Club of Minden came on Thursday with goodies for afternoon tea. It was lovely and everyone enjoyed it.

The advance poll for the coming election has been held here in the auditorium for 2 or 3 days. I don't suppose there is a chance of voting again on the 10th?

Tessa Davis is not very well at present. She had a visit with her son Garnet and some of his family which always helps to cheer her up a bit. We understand Tessa had a bad fall and is in the hospital. We do wish her well and hope she can be home soon.

Dora Dawson had a nephew and wife call on her Saturday afternoon. We had the pleasure of listening to

Mr. Jenkins playing the piano last week. We really enjoy his music and sure look forward to him coming again.

Doris had a bus load for a short but enjoyable trip to Dorset, Lake of Bays, and home again for dinner.

We should remember in our prayers the badly needed rain.

Winnie Barnum went to Peterborough with her grandson Rick to spend a few days as a guest of her sister Mrs. Roy Cameron.

James Simpson had some friends call on him last evening. Percy Brintnell and Joe Gauthier also had callers.

I wonder if you could add a bit about Joan Sawyer meeting the bear outside her house. She went in and got the gun, come out and with one shot killed it. It was a yearling, so it should be very tasty to eat.

I am sorry to report Mrs. Burgess Sr. is ill. We wish she will be better soon.

"A little bit of sunshine from any kindly face can make this dreary planet a very happy place."

kid's korner

by Jean Lacey

Hi kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that, have fun!

Did you know?

by Doreen Hawman

Is your home in need of major repairs but with your income you feel it is out of the question?

Perhaps you could be eligible for the Canada Mortgage and Housing program called RRAP, designed to assist low income homeowners make necessary repairs to their dwelling.

Loans are available to upgrade the structure, electrical wiring, heating and plumbing. Overcrowding may also be considered.

Depending upon the household income and the continuous occupancy of the home for a period of 5 years, a portion of the debt could be forgiven.

Loans are based on current interest rates and can be paid over a period of 20 years.

If you have or intend to have a disabled person in your home, financial assistance may be available to improve accessibility and livability in the home.

For further information regarding the RRAP program or if you have a question you would like answered, contact the Haliburton County Information Centre situated in the Drag River Municipal Building, Haliburton. Our centre is open Monday - Friday 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. or you may call 457-2733. For residents of Minden, our office is located in the Municipal Building, Milne St.

IN MEMORIAM

HEWSON: In loving memory of a dear mother-in-law and grandmother, Janet Hewson, who died September 10, 1986.

We often think of days gone by
When we were all together,
A shadow o'er our lives has cast
Our loved one's gone forever.

We think of you often -

Sadly missed by Ann, Johnny and Brandi Miscio-Hewson

IN MEMORIAM

Dad and Mom - September 1st and 24th, 1986, respectively:

Seems like only yesterday
You both were here to see,
My little girls as they grew up
And share their lives with me.

In one short month you left this earth
And heartache in your trail,
You left me here to bring them up
With pride and without fail.

You should see the baby
She's growing everyday,
I wish you both could sit with me

IN MEMORIAM

And watch my doll at play.

Hard to believe a year has passed
It's nineteen eighty seven,
And Shawna still asks me
most days
Are you happy up in heaven.

The kids will fare, they'll do alright
From you they got their stem,
But I still wish that you were here
To tell them that you love them.

Each day brings an intangible reality.
